

RESUME BUILD PROMPT

Attach your Master Profile and resume template to a Claude chat, then paste this prompt

I've attached two files: my Master Profile (a Markdown file with my verified experience, education, and skills), and a resume template (a Word document) showing the exact structure and formatting I want my resume to follow.

Your task:

- Read my entire Master Profile before writing anything.
- Build a complete, general-purpose resume using only facts, numbers, and keywords that appear in my Master Profile. Do not invent anything, and do not include anything listed under Guardrails or any entry's "Do not claim" notes.
- Follow the attached template's structure exactly: same section order, same section names, same overall format. Replace every placeholder in the template with real content from my Master Profile.
- This is a general resume, not tailored to one specific job yet. Choose my strongest, most relevant experiences and bullets if the template has limited space, prioritizing the most impressive and most quantified achievements.
- Rewrite my Master Profile's raw notes into short, punchy resume bullets, strong action verbs, no filler words, each one ideally showing an action plus a result.
- If my Master Profile lists Phone or Dates as "Not yet provided," leave that exact spot in the resume as [ADD PHONE] or [ADD DATES] so it's obvious what still needs to be filled in, do not guess or leave it blank silently.
- Give me the finished resume broken into clear sections that match the template, in the same order, so I can copy each section into the matching spot in my Word template.

Give me the entire resume as one single output, section by section, ready to copy into the template.

What happens next

Claude reads your Master Profile and builds a complete resume matched to your template's structure, choosing your strongest, most relevant experiences and turning your raw notes into proper resume bullets.

You'll get the resume back broken into sections that match your template, ready to copy into the matching spot in your Word document.

Note: Attach both files before sending: your Master Profile (.md) and your resume template (.docx). Claude needs both to know what content to use and how to format it.